La Meridiana: the heart and soul of a Family

La Meridiana opened its doors to guests in 1977, and just a year later, it joined the prestigious Relais & Châteaux family.
The charming hotel was built at the initiative of noblewoman Luisa Berto de Segre, following the inspiration of her sister, Teresa Berto de Galleani, who had created the nearby 18-hole golf course, the Club House, and the residences surrounding the golf course.
The hotel's style reflects the country villas of neighboring Provence: grand arches and porticoes, exposed stone, antique tile roofs, and warm, sun-kissed colors.
The name La Meridiana was chosen in honor of the nearby Castello del Carretto, known as "the Sundial" (della Meridiana).

Since 1983, Edmondo Segre—one of the two sons of Luisa Berto and Luigi Segre—has personally managed La Meridiana alongside his family, sharing his passions with our guests and making them feel right at home.
Here, luxury is about heartfelt hospitality and attention to the smallest details, such as interior decoration, garden and plant care, fresh floral arrangements for the lobby and restaurants, and much more.
Edmondo also oversees food and wine firsthand: our cellar houses a collection of the finest Italian wines, featuring rare vintages from top winemakers alongside select labels from emerging producers.

He deeply loves Liguria and its scents—thyme, sage, and the delicate aroma of fresh basil—and for our restaurants' cuisine, he constantly searches the market for the finest produce and local artisans who carry on the most ancient traditions. With a keen eye for talent, our kitchen has previously welcomed masters such as Carlo Cracco, Kasten Heidsieck, Ernst Knam, Luigi Taglienti, and Jorge Giubbani. Starting in 2026, we oversee our cuisine in close collaboration with star-studded Executive Chef Roberto Conti.
